PASSED.—The next important thing to going to the Centennial is how to get there. There is not one person in a hundred but will tell you, if you inquire if they intend visiting Philadelphia during the next six months; "Of course, sir, of coursef do." Alcertain gentleman, who intends to go, has been very anxious, lately, about the little items of car-fare, board and lodging, which self force themselves upon the most indifferent minds. By careful calculation he discovered that his funds-in-hand would pay for the last two requisites to health and happiness, but as for railroad fare, he couldn't see how he possibly could make out. He interviewed a friend; said he: "You are well acquainted with the railroad men. Now I want to go to Philadelphia very badly. Can't you—I ask you as a friend and brother—can't you get me a pass?"

The triend wiped off his chin. Then,

me a pass."

The triend wiped off his chin. Then, with a twinkle in his eye, he replied:

"Certainly, certainly; nothing easier in the world. Why didn't you ask me be-the world. Why didn't you ask me before?"

"Why, I didn't know passes were so easily obtained. When can you get it?"

"Any time; to-morrow, if you say so."

"Suppose you get it to-morrow morning—and, by the way, since you can get them so very easily, I have a friend who wants to go and you might as well put his name in too."

"All right; and as you have a whole night before you, just make out a list of

ACCIDENT IN THE OPERA HOUSE.— During the soirce musicale of the music class of the Misses Doddridge in the Opera House last evening, an accident occurred which created quite a flutter of excitement. While Misses Todd, Shryer, Hervey and Heburn were upon the stage, and about to play a piano quartette, the dress of Miss Ella Heburn caught fire from the footlights and in an instant was in a blaze. With admirable coolness and self-possession, Miss Heburn turned and attempted to put out the flames, when Master Burney McLure, who was aitting in the orchestra near the stage, ran forward and assisted her. The flames were easily extinguished, but not before the lady's dress was bully damaged. ACCIDENT IN THE OPERA HOUSE .- Dur

STRAWBERRY SHORT CAKE.—To make strawberry short cake, take a navy biscuit, split it with a hatchet, put the halves into a potatoe steamer, turn on a full head of steam for fifteen minutes, or until they become of the consistence of semi-vulcanized india-rubber, put six small strawberries between the halves and one large berry on top a la turris, and if anybody says that that is not the ordinary strawberry short cake of restaurants, nary strawberry short cake of restaurants it is because he has never been there.

The pupils are all quite young, yet the performance showed much cultivation and considerable akill. The programme was rather long, rendering it impossible for the young ladies to respond to the numerous encores they received. The entertainment was not strictly par excellence as regards skill and execution, but considering the youth of the performers, the music both vocal and instrumental was certainly very creditable. The audience thought so, at least, and expressed their feelings in generous applause. The cantata of "The May Queen," in the second part of the entertainment, was very pretty, and was presented with much taste and effect. The programme of the entertainment we give below:

Music og A Night.—The life of an average newspaper employe is not without its ray of sunshine, or perhaps moonshine would be a better word. If the newspaper office be centrally located, as is the case with the INTELLIGENCER, the long hours are greatly shortened and the weary labor lightened by the noises of the night. And when four or five brass bands are practicing in the immediate vicinity of the office, the delighted compositor presses a hand to his aching temple, and is moved in a fit, of temporary enthusiasm to cast himself headlong out of a four-story window and dash out his brains on the hard street below. Last night, in particular, the windows of the INTELLIGENCER composing room were kept carefulls along less accompositor with ticular, the windows of the INTELLIOENCER composing room were kept care and, in fact, music in the very six we breathed. The Wheeling City Band blowed away in the same building, as if the very existence of the centennial depended largely upon the strength of their lung; the Belshazzar chorus, on Market street, immediately oppositic, threatened to lift the roof

ENGLISH LUTHERAN EXCURSION.—The preparations for that which promises to the the greatest Sunday school excursion which has ever left our city are about completed, and the three chartered trains of the English Lutheran Sunday school will take to the grove of Capt. Harvey Shirls, Washington, Pa., as happy a band of children, teachers and parents as ever made the woods ring with merry shout. The arrangements for these excursions during the past fourteen years have been so complete, so free from any immorality or objectionable feature, that families from the wealthiest for the most need look forward to them as seasons of change and rest amid pure air for themselves and their children. LET US CELEBRATE.—The citizens of Wheeling propose to celebrate the Glorious Fourth this year in grand style. Let the eagle scream until his birdship's voice fills the universe with the melody of its music. Unfurl the flags and let them tremble in the breeze until the canopy of heaven is obscured by stripes and stars. Ring out the wild bells until their jingle melts away into one vast sea of harmony. Let the festive little mortal boom and bark until its merry thunder rolls far to the inland and sweeps across the sea. Let patriotism, which dwells within the hearts of all true freemen, burst its confines and carry everything away in the rush of enthusiasm. Let those who love the nation and its flag exclaim, "God bless America in this Centennial year, and may he bless us all." And more than all—let us drop the subject before somebody comes after us with a stuffed club.

A LIVELY STEAMBOAT RACE IN PROS PLOT.—As has been heretofore announced, ex-Speaker Miller and friends have chartered the steamer Courier, and will go to the Charleston Convention with flying colors, to the music of Krasmer band. It is understood that the Courier band. It is understood that the Courier was chartered in the interest of the disaffected Democracy, and consequently the young men at the Court House are making an effort to secure the Express to carry them to the late permanent seat, and have engaged the Wheeling City Band to accompany them. Both boats will leave here next Monday, and expect to get back by Saturday. Those interested count upon a lively race between the two steamers.

JUSTICE LAUNDER.—Richard McCracken was before this Justice last evening, upon a charge of committing an assault and battery upon John Waterhouse. The hearing of the case was postponed until this morning at 9 ofclock; Mr. McCracken giving bond in the sum of $100 to insure his attendance. THE guiter on the north side of 16th street, west of Jacob, is at last receiving long-needed repairs. This guiter has been a source of annoyance to the people in that locality for some time past, and they will no doubt rejoice at the improvement.

MERTING OF THE FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE.—The committee of two from each ward, appointed by the Mayor on Monday night, held a meeting at the City Building last night in connection with a committee representing the German Centennial organization. The latter reported that their Committee on Procession had recommended the following general agrangements, which had been adopted by their Central Committee;

1. To arrange on the Fourth of July a grand procession through the principal streets of Wheeling, which shall be both of a historical and industrial character.

2. To invite all organized societies clubs, corporations, manufacturing and commercial establishments to putricipate in this procession in a manner they deem most suitable.

3. To form the procession in the morning of the Fourth of July at 8 o'clock on Chapline street, between 11th, and 15th, and the adjoining eastern streets. All the participants have to subordinate themselves to the arrangements made by the Committee on Procession. MEETING OF THE FOURTH OF JULY OMMITTEE. The committee of two from programme of the procession, as well as the feetivities in general (in English and German languages).

6. To arrange two wagons in the procession, the expenses for them to be paid by the organization, viz: one wagon, which shows the influence of the German-American population to the civilization of this country in regard to commerce, industry, agriculture, science, art; indusic, etc.; the other wagon, the four continents greeting the Union to its One Hundreth Anniversary.

7. To deliver each participant of the procession as small badge in red, white and blue, which gives the right of free admission to the Fair Ground.

8. To erect a triumphal arch on the top of Main street, between 10th and 11th streets; the expense of this arch shall not exceed the amount of $200.

After the reading of the above programme, and some subsequent discussion, the Mayor, on motion made, appointed a subscommittee of three, to confer with the German committee touching such modifications or new features in the programme as would give it a more general character as a grand Centennial demonstration on the part of our whole population. This sub-committee had, after the adjournment of the committee of two from each ward, a conference with the German lation. This sub-committee had, after the adjournment of the committee of two from each ward, a conference with the German committee, the result of which will be reported to an adjourned meeting of the General Committee to-night at the City

It is thought that the porch of the Capitol building will be completed by the 4th of July, so that the historical essay can be read from it at the celebration.
